Vandals target primary school three times in just five days

CHILDREN have been left frightened after three break-ins at their primary school in just five days.

The headteacher at Clements Community Primary School, in Greenfields Way, Haverhill, said they were "shocked and horrified" and police have stepped up patrols in the area.

A window in a new classroom was smashed in the first incident, and the school hall was broken into over the weekend, when intruders got in and stole a tin containing £50 cash.

They also caused between £2,000 and £3,000 damage.

The third incident took place on Monday at 7.30pm, when gym equipment was used to break through the school hall's fire door, activating the intruder alarm.

Caroline Zwierzchowska-Dod, headteacher, said: "We are shocked and horrified.

"The school is only three years old and it serves the local community.

"The children are scared and it's disrupted their learning. PE lessons have been cancelled in the hall and they will have to eat their lunch in the classrooms."

The school is working alongside the police to step up security measures.

Two new classrooms being built at the school were due to be finished and in use by the end of the month.

Now, due to the vandalism, pupils will have to wait an additional six weeks to use the classroom while the window is replaced.

Ms Zwierzchowska-Dod, who started at Clements Primary in September, thanked the people of Haverhill for their support following the incidents.

She also thanked Westfield Primary Academy for its help in providing school lunches.

Two boys, aged 11 and 12, were arrested yesterday on suspicion of burglary and criminal damage in connection with the break-ins.

Today, they were each charged with three counts of criminal damage in relation to the incidents.

The boys have been released on bail, and will appear at West Suffolk Youth Court on January 28.

Theft heartbreak for music students

DEBRA FOX

SELFISH thieves have stolen music equipment worth £2,000 from an industrial unit.

Young people taking lessons at the Haverhill Drum Institute have been left heartbroken after monitors, speakers and other equipment was stolen on Sunday.

Recordings to help the students with their grades as well as the equipment to play them have gone.

Tony Mumford, tutor at Haverhill Drum Institute, branded the culprits' actions as selfish.

"The most annoying thing is that it will set back a lot of students," he said.

"I don't think people realise the impact that it has. People steal equipment to use for raves or whatever they use it for, but it ruins things for the students.

"They don't think about the impact on the business - they are just selfish people and it's about time they started thinking about somebody else."

The musical and local communities have shown their support following the break-in, Tony said, with offers to lend equipment and carry out drum lessons where possible.

The unit, on the town's Homefield Road, is shared between the drum institute and Case Construction Ltd.

The theft happened on Sunday between 12pm and 2pm, with the offenders entering the unit through a fire exit.

Bob Spinks, owner of Case Construction, performs in local act That Eighties Band alongside Tony.

He said: "It is just hideous - it's rot-

'HIDEOUS': Bob Spinks showing some of the kit that was stolen.

ten.

"There were no crimes in Haverhill over Christmas and I thought 'great, big up for Haverhill', but then this really hacks you off."

Tony and Bob, who plays bass guitar, have been sharing the industrial unit for around three years.

The band has been together for four years.

A mixing board and a number of cables were found outside the unit following the break-in.

They have since been returned.

CCTV footage around the time of the theft is currently being examined and extra security measures, including bars on the unit's windows, are being put in place.

That Eighties Band is offering two free tickets to their upcoming Valentine's Day gig, plus a meal out in town beforehand if anyone has any information leading to an arrest.

If you have any information, contact Pc Rupert Beynon at Haverhill police on 101 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555111.

Borough hopes to freeze council tax for another year

ST EDMUNDSBURY Borough Council hopes to freeze its council tax for the sixth time in seven years.

Cllr John Griffiths, leader, will ask his colleagues to back the move when they meet in February.

The borough council carried out a consultation last year, asking residents for their views on how certain services are delivered.

Almost 1,000 people responded, with their answers shaping the budget for 2015/16.

Cllr Griffiths said the authority's work with partner council Forest Heath District had led to costs being reduced.

"Forward thinking" had enabled St Edmundsbury to maintain a "solid financial foundation", he added.

Mathematicians attend workshops at university

MATHEMATICIANS from a Haverhill academy have visited Cambridge University.

The students visited the city to take part in a range of workshops and lectures based around the subject.

The trip, which took place last week, also gave students the opportunity to look beyond GCSE level, see how lectures work, and how higher education sessions operate.

Georgina Sargent, team leader for maths at Castle Manor, said: "This event was an excellent opportunity, the students enjoyed the auspicious surroundings of Cambridge University."

"As ever they behaved impeccably and participated fully in the day."

Weapon is used to damage car

POLICE believe a weapon was used to cause damage to a car.

A Ford Focus parked in Butley Court, Haverhill, was targeted by criminals on Sunday evening.

Damage was caused all along one side of the vehicle with a "weapon or object", police said, and the nearside window was broken.

Together, the damage is expected to cost the car's owner around £400 to repair.

The incident happened at around 8pm.

If you have any information, or were in the area at the time of the incident, contact Haverhill police on 101 or Crimestoppers anonymously on 0800 555111.

New academy school lays roots in town's community

PUPILS, parents and teachers have celebrated their school's transition to an academy.

Burton End Primary Academy changed its status last year to become part of the Castle Partnership Academy Trust.

Last week, a special assembly took place to mark the change and trees were planted in honour of the occasion.

Dr Tim Coulson, regional schools commissioner, also attended the event.

He said: "It is great to see the schools' commitment to working together, for the benefit of local children. I wish them every success for the future."

The youngest and eldest pupils worked together to plant the apple trees, which were provided by Sturmer Nurseries.

Madeline Vosper, headteacher, added: "This was a wonderful way to make a permanent celebration of our becoming an academy."

Chance to quiz your minister

WEST Suffolk MP Matthew Hancock has announced a public meeting in Haverhill.

Residents are being invited to the session to discuss local or national problems with their minister.

Its will take place on January 30, from 7pm, at The New Croft, on Chalkstone Way.

Mr Hancock said: "It is important to me to be able to listen to constituents' concerns and discuss the issues that affect our everyday lives."

"This is an excellent opportunity for local residents to share their views about what has been happening both locally and nationally."

Hope for A1307 in City Deal plan

MAJOR work on the A1307 has been included in the Greater Cambridge City Deal priority list.

The scheme, alongside 15 others, has been moved off the reserve list for projects in the first five years.

Around £7.2 million of City Deal cash is due to be splashed on a new park and ride site on the road, between Linton and the A11.

A further £36m is due for investment along the corridor to make journey times for buses more reliable. Dedicated bus lanes could be introduced.

A description of the scheme says the changes "would help increase the attractiveness of the corridor as a place to invest and would also increase the desirability and accessibility of planned new housing in Haverhill".

Cllr Francis Burkitt, a South

JON VALE AND DEBRA FOX

Cambridgeshire district councillor and member of the assembly, said: "We've heard a lot about wanting to be radical and wanting to look to the future and then we've got this bit right down the bottom of the reserve scheme."

"I'd be much, much happier if it could come up into the priority schemes."

"We've heard an enormous amount about 10,000 new jobs being created at the biomedical campus and surely that side of Cambridge needs more study and investigation."

The City Deal could eventually see up to £1 billion invested in the Cambridge area – half from Government and half from elsewhere – to improve its transport, housing and skills provision.

The first £100m will be available from April and be awarded to the city in £20m blocks per year.

Matthew Hancock, MP for West Suffolk, has welcomed the improvement – but is calling for dualling work on the road to be carried out first.

He said: "The need to help reduce tragic accidents, to help ease the heavy traffic flow for all commuters and the economic and business benefits for the local towns are all fundamental reasons why we must push forward a full improvement of the A1307 for both cars and buses to use."

"Although I am delighted the A1307 is getting more attention from the City Deal a bus priority lane would not fully address the problems it creates."

The list of priority projects for the first five years will be approved by the City Deal board on January 28.

House smoke-logged after airing cupboard fire

A FIRE left a house smoke-logged in Haverhill yesterday.

The blaze began in an airing cupboard at a property in Rockall Close.

Two fire crews were called to the scene at around 8.45am.

A spokesman for Suffolk Fire and Rescue Service said: "The property was heavily smoke-logged. Crews extinguished the fire using one hose reel and commenced ventilation of the property.

"A thermal imaging camera was also used to check there were no further hotspots."

No-one was injured.

Taking on the Cube . . .

YOU may recall from last year's running escapades that I'm no gym bunny.

But on New Year's Eve I decided 2015 would be my year – watch out world, here comes a fantastically fit version of Debra (couch potato model still available on request).

With that in mind, I gladly signed up to try the X Cube, the latest craze that's now arrived at Haverhill Leisure Centre.

I am definitely more out of shape than I thought.

Paired with Byron Gross, fitness instructor and personal trainer, I had a go at each of the Cube's multiple stations.

Fit-freak wannabe Debra Fox tries out the new workout craze at Haverhill Leisure Centre

My favourite? The resistance bands.

I was strapped into a harness attached to (basically) a large blue elastic band. Under Byron's supervision I ran forward to touch a marker on the floor, battling against the band every step of the way.

I could practically feel the abs forming after only a few minutes.

The worst? The dip bars.

My weedy arms were put to the test as I clung to metal bars and tried to lower myself to the floor.

I also tried my hand at monkey bars – of course I needed a step to reach the things – battle ropes, punching bags, kettle bells and power bags.

Byron (kindly) said I did well for a beginner, and hailed the Cube as adaptable for everyone's fitness ability.

The facility opened at the centre at the end of 2014, and has already attracted a number of gym-goers.

Don't worry though – instructors are on hand if you, like me, need a little help.

Maybe 2016 will be my year – I think it'll take me about that long to recover from one workout.

■ Classes for the X Cube run on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays between 5.30-6pm.

Too many failing drink-drive limit

THE county's police and crime commissioner has slammed nearly 200 drivers caught over the limit this Christmas.

Tim Passmore has spoken out after Suffolk and Norfolk police released figures from their joint Christmas drink-drive crackdown.

More than 4,600 drivers were tested by the roadside, with 188 testing positive.

More than 100 of these drivers were in Suffolk.

Mr Passmore said: "It is very disappointing to see that too many drivers are still taking to the road under the influence of drink or drugs.

"This cavalier attitude to safety is completely indefensible.

"It beggars belief that

despite the obvious dangers and the huge amount of publicity, some drivers do not seem to be getting the message."

In Haverhill, the Safer Neighbourhood Team (SNT) carried out special festive visits over Christmas and New Year period.

Officers visited the town's supermarkets to raise awareness about drink-driving, and carried out extra patrols.

For the first time, there were no reported crimes on Boxing Day, and only a couple of incidents over the festive period.

Chief Inspector Chris Spinks, head of the Norfolk and Suffolk Roads Policing Unit, is reminding drivers of the risks of being under the influence at the wheel.

It will result in loss of a licence, and could also cost a motorist their job, he said.

Mr Passmore added: "All drivers need to understand that drink-driving risks their lives and the lives of others.

"I fully support the constabulary's approach to tackling drink-driving and hope that slowly but surely the message is getting through, that drink-driving wrecks lives and is totally unacceptable."

More than 5,500 drivers were breathalysed as part of the 2013 campaign, with 204 positive tests.

Contact the police if you see a drink-driver.

Deadline for awards

NOMINATIONS are due for an awards ceremony which will highlight environmental achievements.

Categories include the Greenest School prize, and an award for the county's Green Hero. Visit greensuffolk.org/awards2015

The incident took place between January 9 at 9pm and January 10 at 10am.

Is this a work of fiction?

WITH reference to the article in the January 8 issue regarding yellow lines needing repainting, signs needing changing and roads needing resurfacing. Well you might get one out of three, two if you are really lucky, three – probably not. Most likely there isn't enough money in the pot to do all three. We all know the score, this is 2015. Here in the UK it's 'make do and mend'. People who are old enough will still remember that. Councillors Anne Gower, Julian Flood and Tony Brown must feel like they are hitting their heads against a brick wall to get things done, but we all know getting it done in Haverhill, the forgotten town of Suffolk, takes ages. All credit to them for what they are trying to do, but I wonder whether the people who actually put these issues right would rather put these councillors went away quietly into the cold January night. PCSO Packman got it right. Clear, simple-to-read signs that have no grey areas, hence there would be no problems, no arguments like Councillor Brown states. I don't think Suffolk County Council know how to make it easy and simple; it's not in their brief. I wonder if a return to the more traditional High Street would be much better with proper pavements and roads. Clearly it works in Saffron Walden, Newmarket, Sudbury. Why not here? Faded yellow lines, holes in the roads, yellow lines not terminated properly, parking issues not only in the town, but also on the housing estates where they are at breaking point. No railway, no decent roads . . . the list is endless. Well it doesn't matter does it, it's only Haverhill. You know that overspill town in the corner of Suffolk that hasn't been able to cope since its inception back in the late 1950s and early 1960s. I would like to think that Haverhill Vision 2031 is a reality and not just an excuse to build more houses, then all the issues mentioned will start again. As Hannibal Smith, a character from the TV series The A Team, would say 'I love it when a plan comes together'. Perhaps in truth Haverhill's plan is a work of fiction. You decide.

Have they lost the plot?
IT is good news that the developers of the major housing site north east of Haverhill have listened to the views of Haverhill people and are looking to include a country park in their plans. This would provide an opportunity for the extension of East Town Park, through the linking footpath which runs along the bottom of the golf practice range, and through the woods at the side of the Woodlands hotel. Good news indeed that Haverhill will get a country park, hopefully of a decent size, to become a destination for an increasing number of Haverhill families, just like the parks enjoyed by the residents of Bury St Edmunds and Clare. However, whilst the Planning Inspector listened, and the developers listened to the people of Haverhill, it appears that one St Edmundsbury department had their ears closed, because they have submitted the site of the Woodlands Hotel to Braintree Council as having the potential to develop 32 houses! (The Woodlands Hotel site is in Braintree because that is where the Essex border puts it!) What would become of the woodland and its walk linking the old and potential new parts of East Town Park, if this development came into being? Has someone lost the plot, hopefully not out of pique because the inspector ruled in favour of the inclusion of a country park in the vision for Haverhill? I cannot comprehend this application to Braintree being a conscious political decision by St Edmundsbury, especially in this election year, when to date the country park has had all-party support.

Your Pictures

David Hack sent us this picture of a Little Egret which he photographed on New Year's Day feeding in the Stour Brook, opposite Haverhill fire station. Mr Hack, who is a British Trust for Ornithology Ambassador for Suffolk, wrote: "The Little Egret is a recent colonist in the UK, having first bred here in 1996. "Today there are around 700 breeding pairs, mostly found on the south and east coasts. "In winter their numbers increase to in the region of 4,500 individuals, when wintering birds arrive from the Continent. "At this time of the year these delightful little herons are now not uncommon on inland waters in southern England."

Thank you

HAVERHILL Silver Band and Haverhill Youth and Community Band would like to thank the people of the town for their generosity over Christmas. The two bands carried out four sessions of carol playing in Sainsbury's foyer and, with the proceeds shared, were able to give £360 to the store's chosen charity, St Nicholas Hospice. Following tradition, the senior band played carols in the High Street on Christmas Eve and a further £386 was raised which will, with the band's portion of the collection from Sainsbury's, go towards bandroom and contest expenses. We would also like to thank attendees for their support at the other two concerts and two services which the bands completed, making this a very busy month for all involved. Bright future

THE new year is a timely opportunity to reflect on the past 12 months, while looking ahead to what is shaping up to be a positive year for The Boys' Brigade. In 2014, we started 35 new companies, creating 1,000 places for young people in England, taking our UK membership to over 65,000, which is great news for the lives of young people – boys and girls. Much of this work was achieved as a result of funding from the Government's Social Inclusion Programme administered by the Youth United Foundation. Going forward, new funding has been secured from revenue streams including the Government's Uniformed Social Action Fund, which will enable us to grow the organisation across the country. This year we're working with the Government-led National Citizen Service to deliver additional training for the initiative, which aims to put young people at the heart of the local community. We also hope to create new groups, and focus on after-school provision in rural areas.

Couple died in 100mph collision

A HUSBAND and wife died in a 100mph fireball crash at Bartlow.

Melanie and Peter Saunders were killed instantly when their Mercedes C63 left the A1307 and smashed into a tree on August 9 last year.

Mrs Saunders, 52, had been drinking at The Three Tuns, Great Abington, before setting off for home in Cleves Road, Haverhill.

Stephen Wells, who witnessed the crash, told an inquest he had never seen a car travel as fast.

He said: "It appeared like a flash. I was aware of a vehicle driving at great speed coming to overtake me. It must have been going at 130mph.

"As it drew level, the vehicle mounted the central reservation at an angle of about 30 degrees and it must have stayed there for about 20 metres.

"It then careered off the carriageway and hit a tree, kicking a lot of dust and grass into the air."

After calling 999, Mr Wells saw the car burst into flames, but could hear nothing from inside it.

Mrs Saunders died of multiple injuries, while her husband, 55, suffered severe chest trauma.

ELEANOR DICKINSON

The inquest, held in Huntingdon last week, heard that neither would have been aware of the fire.

Pc Simon Burgin, collision investigator, said the car would have been travelling at a speed of at least 101mph when it began to skid off the road.

He said: "Mr Wells observed the car go out of control. It then went into the grass verge in the centre.

"The brakes were applied and the car rotated anti-clockwise, leaving skid marks for 178 metres.

"They struck a small tree, then the car rotated clockwise and struck another tree, before coming to a stop on its roof and catching fire."

Mrs Saunders was found to have 132mg of alcohol per 100ml blood. The legal driving limit is 80.

"This was the result of her losing control travelling no less than 100mph and having consumed alcohol."

Coroner David Morris recorded a "road traffic death" for the couple, noting Mr Saunders as the passenger.

They leave behind two sons in their 20s.

Agency links up to help jobless

A RECRUITMENT agency is starting the new year with a bang.

Just Recruitment, which works from Haverhill's Withersfield Road, has teamed up with the town's job centre to fill as many vacancies as possible.

Victoria Griffiths, manager, said: "The aim is to get anyone and everyone back into work.

"Even if someone hasn't been working for 10 years we have got opportunities for them."

The team, which has a new division for temporary work, are available for clients to drop in from Monday to Friday.

Call (01440) 536017 for the temporary division and (01440) 270011 for other enquiries.

Charity wants to develop services

A CHARITY is appealing for the public to help shape services.

The Burton Centre, an outreach centre for St Nicholas Hospice Care, opened in May last year to cater for patients and their families.

As well as providing a range of therapies and other classes, the hospice now wants to develop new services to cater for groups across the town.

A community and stakeholder event is taking place at the centre, in Camps Road, on February 19.

There will be two sessions between 11am and 2pm and 4pm and 6.30pm.

Refreshments will be provided, with all being invited to share their views.

Moira Welham, head of community partnership, said: "We know there are thousands of people in and around Haverhill who we could be supporting but are not – yet.

"We would also love to see them, their family members, friends and carers at the event to talk about ways the hospice could help."

For more information contact the Burton Centre on (01440) 848260.

It's time for change'

Cllr Julian Flood was selected last week as West Suffolk's Parliamentary candidate for UKIP. He talks to reporter DEBRA FOX about where his priorities lie

A COUNTY councillor who will stand against the region's MP has promised change for the people of West Suffolk.

Cllr Julian Flood, who represents Haverhill Cangle, was first elected in 2013 – and last week was selected as UKIP's choice for MP in West Suffolk.

He was voted in by his colleagues to be the constituency candidate at a hustings last week – already, he is looking to the “daunting” task ahead.

“The way out of Suffolk's problems is growth,” he said. “We have got to grow. We need more jobs and we need more affordable housing.”

The councillor is also calling for improvements to the A1307, which could potentially unlock development for the whole route from Haverhill to Cambridge.

He added: “We could build the biotech highway from Cambridge to Haverhill – that is what I would really love to see.”

The councillor also wants to see Suffolk use less renewable energy.

The continued use of the power will cause the most problems for elderly and poor people, he said, who will have to pay more and more for their electricity.

Cllr Flood, who lives in Coney Weston, near Bury St Edmunds, has hailed his work as a county councillor as a means of getting to know residents and what they want.

On his appointment to constituency candidate last week he said: “My work as a Suffolk County councillor has shown me that people are desperate for change.”

“UKIP can deliver that change, but it is going to be a hard battle. We need help. Join us in the fight to take our country back.”

Cllr Flood was up against Maria Vigneau for his colleagues' votes.

Ms Vigneau, who lives in Dedham, has now been selected as the Ipswich candidate.

General and local elections are taking place on May 7. Cllr Flood will stand against Matthew Hancock, current MP for West Suffolk and minister for business and enterprise, for the seat.

Appeal after break in attempt at home

WITNESSES are being sought after an attempted break in at a home in Kedington.

The incident took place at the village's Kings Hill between January 5 at 10pm and January 7 at 7pm.

A patio door and window were damaged on a property, and there were signs that the offender or offenders had tried to break into the home using several different ways. A spokeswoman for Suffolk Police said: “Police are reminding people to keep windows and doors locked while out, in order to deter would-be burglars.”

“We're also urging anyone with information about the attempted break-in to get in touch.”

Councillors defer decision on development changes

COUNCILLORS deferred an application to change conditions on a housing development.

Bloor Homes, which has a development on Haverhill's Hamlet Road, wanted to replace proposed ponds with a different feature, and also for woodland at the end of the site to be altered.

But complaints from residents nearby led to members of St Edmundsbury Borough Council's development control committee to ask further questions.

The occupier of Croft House, which borders the site, said his garage was flooding because of drainage problems.

Colin Poole, town clerk, spoke at the meeting on behalf of Haverhill Town Council, which also objected to the change.

The committee unanimously voted for deferral.

Concerns over access in scheme for new homes

DEBRA FOX

PLANS for new homes and a shop on Haverhill High Street have been deferred.

Councillors were concerned that vehicle access to the former Bell pub, which could be transformed into 11 flats and a new shop, would only be from the High Street.

Currently, the street has restricted vehicle access between 10am and 4pm on weekdays – but work on a new town centre masterplan could lead to full pedestrianisation in future.

Speaking at a St Edmundsbury Borough Council development control committee meeting last week, Colin Poole, town clerk, said: "The design is quite nice – it's the location that's the problem."

Mr Poole told the meeting at present, access to the Gurtene buildings was via the High Street – but a proposal had now been drawn for rear access.

The proposal formed part of the company's application for demolition of

VACANT:
The former Bell pub

listed buildings.

"Finally, they do not need this front access," Mr Poole said.

"That means the one remaining problem for stopping pedestrianisation has been removed, so putting another problem in exactly the same place is clearly a strategic impact."

The proposal is also contrary to part of the town's Vision 2031 document, he added.

Potential development areas earmarked in Vision 2031 surround the Bell, with the site immediately behind it not currently in use.

Cllr Maureen Byrne, ward member, told colleagues that local people and both town and county councillors had formally objected to the plans.

She added: "Issues relating to vehicular access and to the impact on our thriving High Street are a common thread in these representations."

The councillor also called for the application to be refused because it only provides "marginal" retail use. There are also issues with water drainage and bin collections, she said.

Speaking on behalf of the applicant, Stephanie Weeks said the development is seen as "suitable" for the vacant town centre site – and that it would bring "a raft of benefits" to the area.

In the future, the applicant would be keen to consider the possibility for development to the rear of the site, if it became available. This was dependent on the outcome of the town centre masterplan.

It was hoped that rear access could then be provided.

Eleven councillors voted for deferral, while further investigations took place. Four were against.

Outline approval for new village homes

OUTLINE approval was given for a batch of new homes as long as the plans included a dropped kerb and zig zag road markings.

Councillors at St Edmundsbury Borough Council's development control committee had previously deferred the outline planning application for up to 40 homes at Hall Road, Kedington, over concerns about road safety.

At a meeting last week, the application was approved by 12 councillors.

The proposed site for the new homes, which would be built by Milton Investments, is on a junction between Mill Road and Hall Road.

Councillors deferred the proposal at their December meeting so that road safety features for the junction could be investigated.

Cllr Maureen Byrne said: "I don't think road markings alone are going to have the impact we are looking for. The more I go and visit this site I am fearful about that bend on the road.

"What's going to happen when we have a substantial increase in vehicles coming off that site."

Officers proposed a choice of H bar road markings and a dropped kerb, or "school keep clear" zig zags and a dropped kerb.

Peter White, planning officer, told the committee that Kedington Parish Council, and ward member, were in favour of the zig zag lines, if the application were to go through.

Joanna Branson is proving extremely well-heeled thanks to her arty enterprise, hand-painting and embellishing beautiful shoes. Louise Cummings meets Stretham's shoe queen . . .

Sole sister

ARMED with her trusty paintbrush, acrylics and a bountiful supply of inspiration, Joanna Branson can conjure up scenes of sheer magic.

In her whimsical work, fairies frolic in mythical forests, Santa rides his sleigh across a glistening moonlit sky, fire-breathing dragons do battle with around to have a go at painting it, and it looked good. So then I thought 'Let's go mismatched' and I did the Phantom of the Opera mask on the other shoe. I didn't realise I liked mismatched things as I'm a bit OCD, but I really liked the pair. They're my personal favourite now and I'd never be able to sell them!"

Ironically, Joanna was a tomboy growing up. "I was never fussed about anything girly; bags, shoes, make-up. But then at university I really started loving the shoe. My favourite brand was Irregular Choice, the more outlandish the better."

Joanna excelled in the arts at school and yearned for a career on the prance around the classroom like I'm on stage all day. It's great! And I've got an audience that can't escape either," she giggles.

But Joanna's burgeoning shoe business, which she runs from her Stretham home, means she also gets to cultivate her painting prowess and indulge her imagination.

"Before I started Shoenique I felt like I'd sold my soul a bit, because I'd studied business management, which I didn't really want to do, and I had no time to sketch. Now it's wonderful because I can sit there in the evenings and do my painting when Millie is in bed," she beams.

'Shoenique – life is too short for boring shoes', to give the enterprise its full title, has been in existence for more than a year now. Indeed, having received a thumbs-up from friends and family for her debut West End shoes, Joanna went on to create some dazzling Wizard of Oz skyscrapers.

"I worked out that I could paint under the arches of the shoes so I did my take on the face of Dorothy under one shoe and the wicked witch under the other. They were red patent, with a red bow on the front and symbolised the ruby slippers."

More elaborate designs followed, as Joanna added dainty embellishments such as charms to fit specific themes, so a Peter Pan duo featured a tiny Tinkerbell wand, while a Beauty and the Beast commission boasted a silver castle.

"It's definitely escalated and I've enjoyed experimenting with clay to make 3D sculpted pairs and found special fabric paints that puff up and do amazing, wonderful things," she enthuses. "My first 3D shoes were zombie-themed for Hallowe'en, drenched in red paint and with raised wounds and burns." I can verify that they're disgustingly good.

"Then I made a dragon pair, complete with raised nostrils, for a lady magician client. They had lit-sword-wielding knights and Dorothy dons her ruby slippers to follow the yellow brick road.

Like the sound of her enchanting scenes? Well you'd better put your best foot forward, quite literally, as the bewitching tableaux are hand-painted on to shoes, from towering heels to fabulous flats, striking sneakers to wacky wedges. And with nearly 3,500 likes for her business Shoenique on Facebook, Joanna's flamboyant footwear is attracting a faithful following.

A primary school teacher and mum to 23-month-old Millie by day, Joanna turns shoe queen by night, transforming bland, boring heels into works of wonder.

"I've always loved fairytales and fantasy; dragons, fairies, things like that," she tells me, jiggling Millie up and down on her knee. "Musical theatre is a massive passion for me, so I'll often theme my shoes around that too."

Indeed, the very first pair the 29-year-old customised featured iconic emblems of the West End. "I was on maternity leave at the time and I was huge and bored and stuck on the sofa," recalls Joanna. "I sketched the Les Mis face in my art pad and wondered if I could transfer it on to a shoe. I had a plain black pair of mid-heels so I sketched the face in pencil then used some acrylics I had lying tle swords on the back and a Game of Thrones feel."

Joanna's one-off works, which take around 12 hours to produce, have appealed to the bridal market, even attracting attention Down Under. "I've had quite a few bridal pairs go off to Australia," she tells me. "There was an amazing Australian lady who was having an Alice in Wonderland-themed wedding with flamingos and all sorts. Her shoes were ridiculously high turquoise numbers, covered in hints to Alice and with red diamante crystal hearts on the toes. They were amazing and thankfully, she loved them!"

Famous faces have also become devotees, including Savannah Stevenson, who played Glinda in Wicked. "Her pair were mismatched and apparently she really liked them," Joanna smiles. "One shoe was white and lacy, with blue and glitter to represent Glinda, and the other was green with black hair for the wicked witch. Both had a yellow brick road painted under the arch to link them together."

Accessories have recently been added to Shoenique's stable, on the advice of husband Chris. "He said 'Don't you women like clutch bags to match?'" Joanna says, mimicking his deep voice. "It was a great idea actually, because now every other pair goes out with a matching clutch."

While Joanna has taken her ornate wares to wedding fairs, she continues to sell well through her thriving

Facebook page, where she often showcases 'tester' shoes to gauge saleability.

And though the entrepreneurial mum has been in business a while now, she admits every new commission is a thrilling prospect: "It's really exciting and certainly gets the creative juices flowing!"

"I have a really detailed chat with the customer to make sure I know exactly what they want, then when I start, I literally can't stop and I forget I've got a child and don't end up eating dinner for three nights because I'm so engrossed!"

Joanna's dream for Shoenique would be eventually to have her own studio – "or maybe a shoe-dio", she smiles.

"I'd love to see my shoes walking down the catwalks too; that would be amazing."

As I get up to leave, little Millie is busy trying to clamber into her mum's towering Mary Poppins heels; with a cheeky grin on her face, it seems this trendy toddler could well be following in mum's very impressive footsteps...

Bright future for growing company

HIGH demand for ceramic circuit boards, which are being used to make brighter LED lights, has led to Cambridge Nanotherm expanding its infrastructure.

This week the Haverhill-based firm switched on an extra electrical substation to cope with the new interest in its products.

Cambridge Nanotherm's technology creates a layer of nanoceramic particles on sheets of aluminium.

The material is completed by a layer of copper, and can then be turned into the kind of standard printed circuit board used in many electrical products.

The firm claims nanoceramic boards can remove heat 20% more efficiently than other materials, and can be produced at a lower cost.

"2014 has been a fantastic year for us," said Ralph Weir, CEO of Cambridge Nanotherm.

"Many electronic and LED manufacturers are starting to realise the thermal benefits of working with nanoceramics, which are simultaneously cheaper than high-end 'metal PCB' materials and higher performance. Upgrading our systems was necessary to cope with the demand. The new substation gives us the power for our expansion plans through 2015 and beyond."

Nanoceramics are particularly useful in the LED lighting field, where the technology allows designers to create brighter, longer-lasting and more cost-effective LED applications. The ability to remove heat more quickly could enable the development of a new generation of more effective LED designs, according to Weir.

"Cambridge Nanotherm extends its heartfelt thanks to New Anglia Local Enterprise Partnership," he added.

"They have been strong supporters of the company as we have grown."

TWINNING SIGNAGE: Beryl Wilkens, of the town twinning association, mayor Cllr Roger André and Elaine McManus with one of the new signs

New signs provide a warm welcome

VISITORS to Haverhill will now be welcomed to the town by brand new signs.

Haverhill Town Council has funded the new signs, which are displayed at various points around the town and show the twinned locations.

The town is twinned with Pont St Esprit, in France, and Ehingshausen in Germany.

Haverhill Town Twinning Association (HTTA) has welcomed the change.

Elaine McManus, chair, said: "On behalf of HTTA, I would like to thank the town council for the twinning signage."

Members will visit Pont St Esprit this year. Call (01440) 761018 if you would like to join the association.

Betting shop fraud trial is set to start in May

A RIDGEWELL man is facing trial for his alleged part in a betting shop fraud.

Daniel McLintock, of Rose Wall, Ridgewell, and Daniel Clark, of Ronald Road, Halstead, are jointly accused of being involved in a scam, where a betting slip is said to have been falsified.

The slip led to a pay out of £13,970.

McLintock, 22, and Clarke, 21, appeared at Chelmsford Crown Court on January 6 and pleaded not guilty.

They now face a trial, which is scheduled to start in May this year.

McLintock is accused of one count of fraud by false representation that he had won £13,970 in a bet.

Clarke, a cashier at William Hill in Halstead, is accused of adapting a betting slip intending it to be used in fraud on April 15 last year.

The 21-year-old is further charged with fraud by abuse of position as a cashier by causing payment of £13,970 to a customer who was not entitled to it.

It is alleged that the offences took place in his branch of William Hill.

Both men have been released on bail.

Tesco's deliveries will start at 5am

DEBRA FOX

A SUPERMARKET has been given permission to start daily deliveries at 5am.

The Tesco branch on Haverhill's Cangle Road will take two deliveries each day between 5am and 7am for a six month period.

Concerns about residents' quality of life were not strong enough to sway borough councillors, who approved the permission at a Development Control Committee meeting last week.

Cllr Maureen Byrne, the town's deputy mayor, urged her colleagues to vote against the change and stick to conditions that were put on Tesco when the store was built.

Currently, deliveries start at 7am, and 8am on Sundays.

She said: "We value Tesco in Haverhill."

"They have created employment and people enjoy doing their shopping there but if you have to live there for six months with two deliveries between 5am and 7am Monday to Sunday it could be hell."

The councillor, who also called for a site visit before the decision, said:

"They are in the middle of a massive housing estate to the back and to the side there's private housing across Watting Road.

"We put the condition in in the first place because the committee considered it reasonable."

Any noise will be monitored by the store, and presented to St Edmundsbury Borough Council at the end of the six months, when the store will either seek permanent, or further temporary, permission.

Gemma Pannell, planning officer, said that the council's own

It was approved by 13 councillors. Two, including Cllr Byrne, voted against the plan.

New owner wanted for sports court

COMMUNITY organisations are being sought to take over a sports court.

The court, which is adjacent to Haverhill's Burton Centre, is currently locked to the public – but a new owner is needed who would allow it to remain in use for children and young people across town.

A spokesman for Suffolk County Council said: "The county council has worked hard to engage with local organisations to allow the facility to remain open for use, however no feasible solution has yet been found."

The surface of the court is in a "deteriorating condition", the council has said, and the condition of the surrounding walls and fences have led to health and safety concerns.

Alternative options are currently being considered, but it is hoped that someone – or an organisation – can be found to bring the facility back into use.

If you have an idea, or would like to manage the court please contact Clair Harvey at Suffolk County Council on 01473 265304.

THE BODY LOCAL WORLD

Get your endorphin boost!

JANUARY is here; the feast has been cleared away, the party is over and, for many, it's been replaced with a big fat anticlimax (possibly a large credit card bill, bulging waistline and ongoing hangover too).

So here are 10 tips for seeing off the inevitable January slump.

■ Appreciate the norm

Take a moment to note down all the things you appreciate but take for granted. You can physically get out of bed. You have people who love you. It's not really so bad is it?

■ Fake it 'til you make it

Even if you feel down, try walking tall and slapping on a smile – an A-lister would be proud of. Chances are you're going to feel better straight away as your brain will think you're happy, release feel-good chemicals, and voilà, you do actually feel happier.

■ Change your aim

"Stop setting your sights on 'getting through the week' – raise your game," advises Andy Cope, co-author of Be Brilliant Everyday and founder of The Art Of Brilliance (artofbrilliance.co.uk). "Set your aim to 'enjoy the week' or 'to inspire people'.

"Anything else, get over it."

GYM TIME: Get those muscles moving!

■ The four-minute rule

That is, be your best self for the first four minutes of arriving at work, being in a meeting, getting home, etc. You'll feel amazing and your brilliance will be infectious both to those around you, and to yourself – seriously, it will be.

■ Stop unhelpful internal chatter

"Change that voice in your head that you use to give yourself a hard time – and change it to sound like Daffy Duck," says Lisa Turner, founder of Psycademy (psycademy.co.uk). "Next time you are beating yourself up – all you need to do is 'Shut the duck up!'."

■ Pretend the sun's shining

Invest in a special light lamp alarm clock, which will ease you into the day by mimicking the light of a beautiful summer's morning.

■ Make it to the gym

We all know exercise releases those feel-good endorphins and you don't have to slog away for hours – a 20-minute blitz will do. Failing that, treat yourself to a sauna twice a week. Feel amazing!

■ Get herbal

"Magnesium is an excellent mineral to take to increase energy and help us to feel better about ourselves," says Shona Wilkinson, nutritionist at NutriCentre, "while St John's Wort is a licenced herb to support feelings of mild depression."

■ Get planning

Use the dark and miserable days to hatch a plan on how you're going to spend the rest of the year. Then whenever you're feeling down, you can take a look at the list and look forward to everything you've planned.

■ Watch out for the 90/10 principle

This states that 10 per cent of your happiness depends on things that happen to you while a whopping 90 per cent depends on how you react to these events. Make a conscious choice to be and think positive – simple.

First Aid Kit

Sisters and makers of ethereal folk pop with a country edge, Johanna and Klara Söderberg weren't even out of school when the music industry started taking note. In fact, they began writing songs aged 6, and Klara was only 14 when they were signed to their first label. And rightly so. The Swedish pair, now in their early 20s, with hippie hair and a penchant for all things glittery, are really quite mesmerising. Their set will be packed with beautiful, countrified delights from latest album Stay Gold which, in places, has "all the slinkiness of a 1960s spy movie soundtrack" according to NME. We're smitten. ## Royal Northern Sinfonia

Lovers of classical music are in for a treat this month when leading UK ensemble the Royal Northern Sinfonia make their Cambridge Corn Exchange debut. The evening opens with Barber's haunting Adagio for Strings which tugs at the heart like no other piece of string music. Kyra Humphreys directs the ensemble and plays Mozart's Violin Concerto No 4, one of the composer's most elegant and accomplished compositions. Cellist Natalie Clein gives a spirited performance of Saint-Saëns' lyrical and majestic Cello Concerto No 1. The evening concludes with Mozart's playful and brilliant Symphony No. 29. If you haven't heard of Hudson Taylor yet, we'll wager you're neither a teenaged girl or a hardcore folkster. All sharp cheekbones, black skinny jeans and rockabilly haircuts, the Irish folk pop duo are Dublin brothers Alfie and Harry Hudson-Taylor. They started out as buskers in their home town before flooding YouTube with a selection of raw, catchy tracks and attracting the attention of Polydor. Since then they've gone from supporting Jake Bugg on tour to headlining their own. Cambridge Junction, Tuesday, February 10. Contact (01223) 511511 / junction.co.uk.

Clean Bandit plus Jess Glynne

Cambridge electro quartet Clean Bandit have announced they're finally playing a headline gig in the city in which they formed (about time!). The four-piece – who met while studying at Cambridge University – features Jack and Luke Patterson, cellist Grace Chatto and violinist Milan Neil Amin-Smith. Playing synth chamber music, in 2014 they had their first number 1 with breakout hit Rather Be featuring Jess Glynne – who'll be joining them on tour – spent the summer drawing major crowds at festivals (oh the dancing), and saw their debut album New Eyes do rather well to boot. We adore them.

Paul Weller

King of the mods Paul Weller is visiting Cambridge again. The Jam legend has acted on his own terms since splitting from his Town Called Malice boys in 1982 and following a five-album stint with The Style Council. His solo career has garnered Ivor Novello nominations and Outstanding Achievement awards all over the shop, and clearly he has no interest in retiring just yet. Weller has hinted he'll be performing tracks from his as yet unnamed 12th studio album, which is rumoured to be set for a spring release, fingers crossed. Cambridge Corn Exchange, Friday, March 13.
Contact (01223) 357851 / cornex.co.uk.

Wolf Alice

This four-piece might still be working on their debut album, but they are serious ones to watch. Last time they visited Cambridge it was for a Portland Arms show, so they've already stepped up their game venue wise. Prepare for a show that sounds like "the love child of folk and grunge" according to Clash magazine. It's thumping yet melodious stuff. And they're going to have a big 2015 – jump on the bandwagon now.

Cambridge Junction, Friday, April 10. Contact (01223) 511511 / junction.co.uk.

Bipolar Sunshine

This gig is the rescheduled version after Adio Marchant (Bipolar Sunshine) cancelled his first headline tour to focus on his debut record (still to be released). Penning heartfelt, uplifting indie pop with an R&B edge, the singer is formerly of Manchester outfit Kid British. Always stylish and deep into the feeling behind his music, Adio knows how to tug on your emotions and put on an impressive show, of course. Cambridge Junction, Friday, April 10. Contact

Public Service Broadcasting

This gig from the eclectic and rather mysterious Public Service Broadcasting will come weeks after the pseudonymous duo showcase their brand new second album, The Race For Space, at the National Space Centre. Known for wearing corduroy and bow ties, and for playing live electronica over snatched audio recordings and video archive material from old public service information films (hence the name), the pair, J Willgoose Esq and Wigglesworth, made a name for themselves with 2013 record Inform

Stornoway

Named after the Scottish town on the Hebridean Isle of Lewis that appears on British weather reports and shipping forecasts on the telly, this introspective lot met and formed in Oxford (don't hold it against them). Their third album, for which they raised the cash via the PledgeMusic scheme, should be out shortly, packed with wheeling vocals and stormy themes – they love a bit of indie murkiness.

Cambridge Junction, Tuesday, April 28. Contact (01223) 511511 / junction.co.uk.

Belle & Sebastian

Celebrated Scottish indie darlings Belle & Sebastian had everyone in a flutter after announcing a huge new spring tour, and luckily Cambridge made the line-up. # Watch out for our birds

AS the RSPB, bird-watchers and gardeners nationwide gear up for the charity's annual Big Garden Birdwatch, the organisation is warning that birds that have benefited from a mild autumn will begin to struggle as the weather changes.

Results from the findings of the 2014 event, in which almost half a million people recorded the birds they saw over the two days, revealed some interesting changes among our most popular garden birds, with some species that benefit from a bit of extra help creeping up the rankings.

Blue tits emerged in their highest position since Big Garden Birdwatch began, at number two. The previous occupiers of the second spot, blackbirds, dropped to number four. Goldfinches climbed another place since the previous year and reached number seven while the robin dropped back to number 10. There was a new entrant to the top 20 – for the first time ever, the great spotted woodpecker squeezed in at number 20.

As well as asking the public to record their findings – with the help of identification pictures available on the RSPB website www.rspb.org.uk – the organisation is also asking people to do their bit to protect our birds through the winter by topping up their bird feeders and providing fresh water and shelter for wildlife in their gardens.

The nature charity says there are three key things that birds will need this winter: food, unfrozen water and shelter.

1. In chilly weather, birds will appreciate a variety of food, but fatty food will be especially helpful. For example, fat balls, or homemade bird cakes made with lard and packed with seeds, fruit or dried mealworms are great treats to put out in your garden. Kitchen scraps will work well, and a recipe for successfully feeding birds over winter might include chopped fat from unsalted meat, cheese, dried fruit and pastry.

2. Unfrozen water for drinking and bathing may be hard for birds to find when there's been a frost, but with a simple trick you can help to keep a patch of water ice-free. Float a small ball, such as a ping-pong ball, on the surface of the water. Even the lightest breeze will keep it moving and stop an area of the water freezing.

3. Provide shelter by planting dense hedges such as privet or hawthorn, or allowing ivy or holly to grow. These all provide great cover for

by Hannah Stephenson

birds to roost in. Nestboxes can also be good roosting sites. Roofs are also a popular spot for birds trying to keep warm. If birds are getting into a hole in your roof and you need to get the hole fixed, consider putting up a nestbox to replace the gap. Find out more about giving nature a home in your garden here: rspb.org.uk/homes

RSPB wildlife advisor Richard James says: "People can make a real difference to garden birds and improve their chances of surviving the winter. "Birds don't need much and by providing a supply of food, a patch of unfrozen water and somewhere to shelter from the elements, you will be rewarded with great views of wildlife in your back garden."

"While birds need fatty foods, you shouldn't put out fat from a roasting tin, such as turkey fat from Christmas, as this runny fat can coat birds' feathers, making it difficult for them to move or fly."

The RSPB's annual Big Garden Birdwatch, the world's biggest wildlife survey, returns on Saturday and Sunday, January 24 and 25. To take part, people are asked to spend just one hour at any time over that weekend noting the highest number of each bird species seen in their gardens or local park at any one time. They then have three weeks to submit their results to the RSPB, either online at www.rspb.org.uk/birdwatch or in the post.

Last year's event revealed that house sparrows were the most recorded birds despite their falling numbers. The full results can be viewed online at rspb.org.uk/birdwatch

CAPABLE: The new Volkswagen Polo Bluemotion

The First Bluemotion to run on petrol is due

VOLKSWAGEN has announced details of its first high economy Bluemotion variant to run on petrol instead of diesel. The Polo Bluemotion uses a 1.0-litre TSI engine to deliver 95bhp and 160lb ft of torque, giving respectable performance; 0-62mph takes 10.5 seconds and the top speed is 119mph. More importantly the petrol-powered Polo Bluemotion is capable of 68.9mpg and so has an official CO2 figure of

Based on the S model, the Polo Bluemotion gains unique front and rear bumpers, a smoother grille, side skirts and a rear roof spoiler as

THE Great Sale is now under way at Marshall Kia with a huge selection of used, ex-demonstrator and pre-registered cars.

As well as the vast selection of cars on site, the staff at the Newmarket Road dealership can organise access to any one of the 3,500 Marshall approved used cars online to be delivered to the site for your test drive, which means you can go to marshallueeb.co.uk/kia and pick the car that suits your budget and taste – or, if you can't see what you want, you can click on the finder service and let the Marshall team help you source your perfect motor.

"With new part exchanges arriving every day, and many of our event vehicles being prepared to meet our high standards, just provide as many or as few details as you wish and let us do the hard work for you," said a Marshall spokesperson. "And having a value for your current vehicle may help you to determine your price range for a quality vehicle from our Great Sale. Our Great Sale is going to be bigger than ever, so make sure you don't miss out."

If you're on Twitter, follow the regular updates @MarshallKiammg.

Haverhill duo take second

CHRIS Briggs and Dave Simpkin took second in the fourball better ball competition at the latest Suffolk Winter Alliance meeting.

The Haverhill duo scored 41 points at Bungay and Waveney Golf Club, just narrowly missing out on top spot.

Briggs and Simpkin were one behind winners Roger Gardiner and Gary Borthwick, of Stoke-by-Nayland.

They were also two ahead of third-placed Les Norman and Robin Hood, of Stoke-by-Nayland and Brett Vale respectively.

In all, 72 players braved the wintry conditions to compete, including three professionals.

The professional prize was won by Hintlesham's Jack Cardy with a level par score of 69.

The other two professionals, Joe Cardy and Danny Barton, both carded non-returns.

Mike Haslam, the Bungay and Waveney Golf Club vice-captain, presented prizes to the winners.

The next Winter Alliance meeting is at Waldringfield on January 25.

Read the super sub in Borough triumph

JORDAN Read's added-time strike snatched a 2-1 victory for Haverhill Borough at home to Downham Town in the Thurlow Nunn League, First Division.

It was a slow start for the hosts and they fell behind after 12 minutes when Downham's Mark Smith latched onto a long ball forward and scored.

Borough goalkeeper Charlie Turner made two fine saves in quick succession around the half-hour mark, preventing Smith from extending Downham's lead.

It was the introduction of player-assistant manager Martin Westcott at half time which proved the spark for Borough's revival.

He went close to levelling the scores within minutes of the restart and Borough were back in the match soon after, when Gavin Taylor poked home a Lee Hurkett corner from close range.

Borough were now in the ascendancy, with Ryan Kent grazing the top of the crossbar, Hurkett going close, and Ash Drew forcing a fine save from home goalkeeper Joe Clements.

Then, as time ticked away, substitute Read was quickest to react to a ball over the top from midfield and raced onto it to slot past Clements for the winner.

In the Premier Division, Dan Cornwell's finish from the penalty spot earned Haverhill Rovers a 1-1 draw away to Kirkley & Pakefield.

Kirkley took the lead on 35 minutes, but the visitors were awarded a penalty in the 67th minute and Cornwell duly stepped up to convert it.

Both Rovers and Borough are without a league game this weekend.

Meanwhile, Rovers are looking for a manager to take charge of their new reserve team, which will play in the Thurlow Nunn Reserve League.

They are seeking a candidate with a Level Two or equivalent coaching qualification and who actively looks to promote the development of youth players.

The role will work closely with the first team manager, under-18s manager and football development officer.

Anyone interested should email their CV to chairman Ali Shulver via alastair.shulver@matthey.com.

The closing date for applications is January 31.
